Appendix III: JSTOR Usage Statistics

Please note

Throughout the JSTOR Usage Statistics Report, "articles" refers to all items in an issue, including full-length articles, book reviews, editorials, etc. Journals within each subject group have been released in the database at different times and may be available at different numbers of institutions.

The Journal of British Studies first appeared in JSTOR in December 2001, at which point there were forty titles in the category "History." The category has now expanded to include sixty-six titles, and will presumably continue to grow.

Usage of Journal of British Studies in JSTOR (January 2003– August 2004)

The tables on the following page report usage of the Journal of British Studies in JSTOR in calendar 2003 and calendar 2004 to 17 August 2004. Usage of the journal continues to remain steady, even increasing slightly which is good given the expansion of the category.

Following these tables are two lists, each showing the 25 most frequently accessed Journal of British Studies articles in JSTOR (note the wide chronological range). The first list is for calendar 2003 and the second is for calendar 2004 through 17 August. The ranking of these articles is based on the sum of total viewings and total printings. Number one for both 2003 and 2004 is "An Empire of Goods: The Anglicization of Colonial America, 1690-1776."
